Second Class Matter.

For a long time we have been a reliable paper for the people and the family. Democratic and bearing to discuss no issue wherein the people's rights are at stake. Progressive, abreast of the age, we shall always endeavor to keep our editorial and local columns up to the day and hour. Our circulation is rapidly increasing, and we hope to soon have the largest circulation any paper in Eastern North Carolina.

GOLDSBORO, N. C., NOV. 24, 1912.

THE TARIFF BUSINESS.

As the Philadelphia Times well and times says, the public will take little note of the disappointed partisans who threaten to stop their mills and factories because the people have revolted against the McKinley tariff. Such threats must come from three classes of business men—first, the few who have been enriched by tariff taxes and paid out their money as usual to buy continued control of tariff legislation; second, the violent partisans who learn nothing and forget nothing; and, third, the bankrupt business men who are seeking some excuse for proclaiming their want of business skill and success.

There has been no Presidential contest during the last score of years that has not been speedily followed by reductions of wages in many of our protected industries. The protected employers are always averse to reduced wages or stopping mills during national campaigns, as they want to control the votes of their workmen in favor of high tariff candidates; but when the election is over and political necessities perish, wage reductions and stoppages of mills follow regardless of the decision of the people.

The national contest of 1888 was fought on the tariff issue, and increased prosperity and wages were promised on every side. If Harrison won; but within one year after his election, wages had been reduced in hundreds of protected industries every where and over a hundred of our protected establishments were closed. What followed the election of Harrison may follow the election of Cleveland for a season; but in neither case did the verdict of the people in the choice of a President decide the reduction of work or wages.

The man engaged in any industrial pursuit that has legitimate foundation, who now decides to stop his business or reduce the wages of labor, either does not understand his business or he seeks an excuse to rob his workmen. No tariff bill will become a law during the Cleveland administration that reduces tariff taxes on any of our general products below the point of the full difference between the cost of well paid labor here and abroad in the same calling; and the man who cannot continue his business on that basis of sound and honest protection, should stop at once. The people will not longer consent to be taxed simply to enable a few individuals to amass unearned fortunes.

If protected manufacturers are wise they will take pains as calamity prophets and accept the lesson so clearly taught by the people. The many will consent to be taxed for the extent of attaining "the greatest good for the greatest number," but just there they will call a halt. They will not consent that the many shall be taxed for the benefit of a favored few. Not only will the Cleveland administration refuse assent to such a policy, but no party power of the future, whether Democratic or Republican, will ever assent to it again. It is dead—dead beyond the reach of the resurrection trump. The late election was a revolution, and revolutions take on steps backward.

No one can say that money elected Cleveland. The Democratic party didn't have money enough to buy the whole country!

Mr. McKinley's land since the election has been about as heavy to bear as his Bill was for the country to shoulder.

AN UNEXPECTED ANSWER.

When Senator Sherman was questioned as to the future of the Republican party, he said: "The future of the Republican party, rests with the Democrats, as they have absolute control of every branch of the Government."

Such an answer was not to have been expected from Senator Sherman, but it strikes us as a correct one. If the incoming Administration and Congress shall act wisely and prudently in the discharge of their duties, as enjoined by Democratic sentiment, and approved by a majority of the people at the polls, there will be no further use for the Republican party, and it will cease to exist except as an unpleasant reminiscence of American folly.

Rev. Edward E. Hale evidently is no pessimist. Preaching in a Unitarian Church at Berlin, Mass., on Nov. 10, where he preached his first sermon fifty years ago, he said that "the statistics of the country, rightly read, show that there is less crime, less disease, and less pauperism than there was fifty years ago. There are better schools and more; better hospitals and more; better parks and boulevards and public gardens, and more; better pictures on the walls and more; and especially better books and more, better libraries and more." In conclusion he said: "Cynics speak bitterly of the happy-go-lucky habit of our people, but it is born of their political freedom, and still more from the certainty which is slowly working its way, that they are the children of God and heirs of infinite power."

That the strong and invulnerable personality of the Democratic candidates on the National ticket had much to do with the victory achieved on the 8th inst., no intelligent citizen can doubt. With candidates of assailable integrity for any cause, and commanding less of public confidence, the party might have been beaten with all the advantage it possessed in being in sympathy with labor and the masses. The Chicago Convention, as much by its action in the nomination of Cleveland and Stevenson as by its declaration of principles, gave assurance of the glorious Democratic victory that has followed.

The ghost of the late G. O. P. has appeared to Cincinnati policemen in the shape of a black dog. This is what might be called "piling it on."
